HOW TO USE THIS TABLE

You will need: a coin, and four dice — the ordinary six-sided kind from board games. (One die is enough: just roll it four times. Four dice makes it a lot quicker.)

For each word: flip the coin to pick the table, then roll two pairs of dice. First pair = column, second pair = row. If the cell says REROLL, roll the dice again on this same table — do not re-flip the coin.

Read each pair left to right, where the dice land — never smallest first. Column 3-5 means first die 3, second die 5; 5-3 is a different column. Sorting each pair low-to-high would make 3-5 twice as likely as 3-3 and put 15 of the 36 columns out of reach. You would still get words, and they would no longer be uniform.

Example. Coin shows heads → this table. Roll 3 and 5 → column 3-5. Roll again, 2 and 6 → row 2-6. The word where that column and that row cross is yours: write it down, flip the coin, and start the next word.

REROLL cells are not a defect. 1296 dice outcomes cannot be spread evenly over 1024 words, so 272 of them are discarded to keep every word exactly as likely as every other. About one roll in five lands on one; just roll the four dice again.

Write each word on the worksheet as you get it, and flip the coin again for the next word. Stop at any point between 12 and 22 words — more words from you means fewer from the device, and either end is a full-strength phrase. The word boxes on the page also take the throw itself — `a3526`, coin letter first — and look it up in these same tables, so you can type what you wrote down rather than what you read off.

HOW TO USE THIS TABLE

You will need: a coin, and four dice — the ordinary six-sided kind from board games. (One die is enough: just roll it four times. Four dice makes it a lot quicker.)

For each word: flip the coin to pick the table, then roll two pairs of dice. First pair = column, second pair = row. If the cell says REROLL, roll the dice again on this same table — do not re-flip the coin.

Read each pair left to right, where the dice land — never smallest first. Column 3-5 means first die 3, second die 5; 5-3 is a different column. Sorting each pair low-to-high would make 3-5 twice as likely as 3-3 and put 15 of the 36 columns out of reach. You would still get words, and they would no longer be uniform.

Example. Coin shows heads → this table. Roll 3 and 5 → column 3-5. Roll again, 2 and 6 → row 2-6. The word where that column and that row cross is yours: write it down, flip the coin, and start the next word.

REROLL cells are not a defect. 1296 dice outcomes cannot be spread evenly over 1024 words, so 272 of them are discarded to keep every word exactly as likely as every other. About one roll in five lands on one; just roll the four dice again.

Write each word on the worksheet as you get it, and flip the coin again for the next word. Stop at any point between 12 and 22 words — more words from you means fewer from the device, and either end is a full-strength phrase. The word boxes on the page also take the throw itself — `a3526`, coin letter first — and look it up in these same tables, so you can type what you wrote down rather than what you read off.

RECORDING WORKSHEET

Fill in from Word 1 downwards. You need at least 12 and at most 22 — words 23 and 24 come from the device.

An empty coin column is the one mistake this procedure is prone to: every word must get its own flip. The last page says what to do with this sheet once it is full.

Take this sheet to the machine running dice39 — offline, with Wi-Fi, Ethernet, 4G/5G and Bluetooth all off. Type the words in the order written here, starting at Word 1. Then check the results panel line by line: it repeats every word you typed next to the word it used, so you can confirm nothing was altered. Words 23 and 24 are added by the device; that is expected.

Only then destroy this sheet — burn it, or shred it across the grain. It is your seed in the clear, and it is worth exactly as much as the coins the phrase protects. Never photograph it, and never type these words into anything that is online.
